A scary moment

One day I was sitting in the class, the atmosphere was stuffy and boring. There was not a breeze and the sunlight glared down on those students sitting beside the windows. The blind had not been fully closed and they could not avoid the strong sunlight. The sound of the air conditioner made like a student groaning about the difficulty in the class.

The teacher was standing before the blackboard, holding the thick reference book and making interesting speech. However, the food eaten at lunch began to break down into starch in their stomachs, some students were gradually felt sleepy.

Suddenly, David cried loudly. Oh! There was a very big cockroach in his school bag. The girls screamed and ran around in the classroom very quickly. The cockroach could fly! It was on the window. The teacher tried to hit it but it flew to the other corner of the classroom. Everyone was scared. Some children even hid under the desks and the tables. Fortunately, Uncle Tom, the school helper, came with a big broom and he hit the cockroach on the wall when it was flying across the classroom.

‘Hurray!’ Everyone shouted.

My best friend, Brian

One day, my parents and I went to the supermarket. After daddy parked the car, we saw one little boy standing near the main door of the shopping mall and he was crying. We went to the boy and asked, “ Why you are crying here? Where are your dad and mum? ”

The boy didn't stop crying and said, “ I got lost with my parents, they disappeared once I came out from the toy shop. I am so scared and hungry. Can your help me, please?

So I gave him bread and brought him to the information counter to ask for help. Five minutes later, a tall man and a woman with a pair of glasses came to the counter and said, “ Oh! My boy, you are here! We are so worry about you!” The boy ran to his parents and his parents gave him a big hug. The boy stopped crying and his parents thanked us!

Finally we became good friends and we meet every Sunday because we have joined the badminton course together. Last year, our families travelled to London together in the summer holidays. I my best friend Brian
